

Dhairya and the Shy Little Comet

Meet Dhairya, the bravest little astronaut in the whole wide galaxy. With his wavy hair floating in space and his favorite bright blue spacesuit, he was ready for a grand adventure. Today, he was zooming his ship past the sparkly purple planets!

Suddenly, he saw something hiding behind a bumpy grey moon. It was a little comet, but it wasn't flying fast or glowing very bright. The comet looked very shy and a little bit lonely in the giant sky.

Dhairya knew exactly what to do! He put on his green and gold space-boots and stepped right out into the starry sky. He flashed his biggest, happiest smile to show the comet he was a friend.

The little comet saw Dhairya's warm smile and slowly drifted closer. It wiggled its sparkly tail, feeling much braver now! Dhairya giggled and reached out his hand to give the comet a gentle, friendly pat.

"Let's fly together!" cheered Dhairya, spreading his arms out wide like an airplane. The comet zipped and zoomed around him, leaving a trail of shimmering silver stardust. They played tag all the way across the Milky Way!

Even in the giant, endless space, Dhairya knew the best adventures were the ones you shared with a friend. With his glowing new pal by his side, the brave little astronaut was ready to discover the whole universe!

For Dhairya, may your big, bright smile always light up the universe.
